History of the Veterans Day Council

In the mid 1960's, some civic-minded individuals decided that Indianapolis should honor Indiana veterans with a special observance of Veterans Day. Many local service organizations and smaller Indiana towns recognized veterans on Veterans Day, but there was no city-wide observance.

That changed with the Veterans Day Council's formation. Since then, Veterans Day in Indianapolis is observed with a memorial service, parade and banquet

The Veterans Day Council is now incorporated, but its focus has not changed since it was organized in the 1960's: to appropriately recognize Indiana veterans so that their deeds and sacrifices are not forgotten.
